

Census 2000 jobs!

The Bureau of the Census is recruiting thousands of people in your area to help take the Census.

Help our country start the new millennium with an accurate Census. You can perform a public service and earn a competitive hourly wage. Census takers are trained on-the-job and paid weekly. The hours are flexible, usually weekends and evenings, when people in your community are home. Confidentiality and a minimum commitment of 20 hours-per-week are required of Census takers. These temporary jobs last approximately four to six weeks. It's a perfect second job and great for retirees.

Your share of government support to hospitals, schools, and highways depends on an accurate Census count by people like you. Do yourself and your community a service.
